Jonathan Swift (1667-1745), the Anglo-Irish writer and clergyman, is credited with saying,

"Everything old is new again".

Surely, this is how Christians should approach every ADVENT and CHRISTMAS - not with weariness but rejoicing that Christ is born into the world and into our hearts eternally, ever new.

The liturgical year often begins with old Scriptures, old songs, old traditions. Yet, we can discern new life and new beginnings everywhere we turn - in our loved ones, friends, church, community and world because our Saviour lives. We are watchers, waiting for Christ to reveal Himself again and again in the hearts of people and in amazing answers to our prayers.

So, O come, let us adore Him, again.
